

ARMY ROTC BECOME AN OFFICER IN
THE ARMY RESERVE

goarmyreserve.com

ARMY ROTC - START STRONG AS AN ARMY RESERVE OFFICER

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps (ROTC) program provides an opportunity to start strong in the Army Reserve after college. Different than Active Duty, you have some unique additional choices when you serve in the Army Reserve. You can live where you want, have a civilian career, and be close to the people you love. Get the same training while only serving one weekend a month and two weeks annual training in the Army Reserve. Whether you're currently enrolled in Army ROTC or you're a prospective cadet, the Army Reserve can fit into your long-term plans. Offered at more than 1,300 colleges and universities, ROTC is the passport to higher education that offers a student a series of elective courses. A qualified student can earn a merit-based scholarship, for up to full tuition; an allowance for books and fees; and a monthly stipend of up to $5,000 per academic year. When a cadet graduates, he or she can accept an officer's commission as a second lieutenant in the Army or Army Reserve.

More than 32,000 officers proudly serve in the Army Reserve, many of whom achieved their commission through Army ROTC. These officers are much more than leaders in uniform. From graduate students to managing CEOs, they are leaders in the private and public sectors.

GAIN THE OPPORTUNITY TO EXCEL

The transferable skills gained from Army ROTC and ultimately as an officer in the Army Reserve will set you apart from your peers in school and in your career outside of the military. No matter which path you follow to become an Army Reserve officer, you'll gain the opportunity to excel as an individual and as a leader in one of the following career branches:

- ★ Adjutant General
- ★ Aviation
- ★ Chemical
- ★ Engineer
- ★ Finance
- ★ Logistics (Ordnance, Quartermaster and Transportation)
- ★ Medical Service
- ★ Military Intelligence
- ★ Military Police
- ★ Signal

Army Reserve officers also gain advanced opportunities in the following functional areas:

- ★ Acquisition
- ★ Chaplain
- ★ Civil Affairs
- ★ Judge Advocate General
- ★ Medical Services
- ★ Military Information
- ★ Support Operations
- ★ Public Affairs

ARMY ROTC - START STRONG AS AN OFFICER

TAKE CONTROL

Whether you're considering ROTC, enrolled in ROTC or a contracted scholarship cadet, you control your future. The Army Reserve has opportunities for you even up to the start of your graduating year. No matter what your scholarship status, you have the option to transition to an Army Reserve commissioning track and still keep your scholarship.

AFTER GRADUATION - TAKE THE NEXT STEP

The Private Public Partnership Office helps highly qualified Army Reserve officers find employment opportunities with top employers across the nation including Fortune 500 companies. Army Reserve officers gain access to free civilian career counseling services throughout the country, increasing their chances of success for finding employment that enhances both their military and civilian careers. This joint venture facilitates the transition from civilian worker to Army Reserve Soldier and allows employers to have a more predictable picture of their future staffing needs. For more information, visit www.usar.army.mil/employerpartnership.

TAKE YOUR DEGREE TO THE NEXT LEVEL

Want to continue your education after your degree? After you've received your commission as an Army Reserve officer and completed your Basic Officer Leadership Course, you are eligible for the GI Bill, and receive up to 36 months of entitlements which can be used for both graduate and post-graduate degree programs.

LEARN MORE ABOUT THE ARMY RESERVE AND ROTC

Whether you're a scholarship cadet with a contract or new to the ROTC program, you will become a key decision maker with the ability to succeed in any competitive environment as an Army Reserve officer. For more information, contact your university's Professor of Military Science or visit goarmy.com/rotc and goarmyreserve.com.

IT'S YOUR CHOICE - SCHOLARSHIP OR SMP

Based on your qualifications, you may have any number of ROTC scholarship opportunities (two-, three- or, four-year options) that will ultimately enable you to commission as an officer in the Army Reserve. Additionally, the Army Reserve's Simultaneous Membership Program (SMP) option allows you to attend Army ROTC while serving as a non-deployable officer in training in an Army Reserve unit.

Further, some ROTC cadets have the opportunity to earn a two- or three-year Guaranteed Reserve Forces Duty scholarship, which affords them both the benefits of the ROTC scholarship and the benefits of serving in the Army Reserve simultaneously. To learn more, visit goarmy.com/rotc or talk with your Army Reserve recruiter.

SCHOLARSHIP AND SMP BENEFITS INCLUDE:

- ★ Up to 100% coverage of tuition and fees.
- ★ A cash bonus depending on branch selection.
- ★ Monthly stipend per academic year of $300 for first year students, per academic year of $350 for second year students, per academic year of $450 for third year students and per academic year of $500 for fourth year students.
- ★ Drill pay up to $291 per weekend.
- ★ GI Bill benefits for those who qualify.
- ★ You may qualify for the GI Bill even if you've not served in the military previously or been a member of the SMP.
- ★ The Army Reserve offers opportunities to serve in any state in your chosen branch.
- ★ Soldiers in the Army Reserve (and their families) are entitled to low-cost health coverage through TRICARE Reserve Select.

BECOME A LEADER OF LEADERS

goarmyreserve.com

Connect with more at goarmy.com/connect

©2016. Paid for by the United States Army. All rights reserved. Note: Information contained in this publication is subject to change. See your campus Professor of Military Science for the latest information.

RPI 780, January 2016

GPO: UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE: 2016 634-115/10140